The path remains a popular spot with runners, bikers, rollerbladers, and walkers who all want to take in the lovely views of the Intracoastal Waterway to the west and sprawling Palm Beach mansions to the east. Many of the houses are hidden by high hedges, but along the way you'll still be able to catch glimpses of glamorous pools, elegant formal gardens, and two of Flagler's own sumptuous properties—Seagull Cottage and Whitehall (now the Flagler Museum).

PARKS & RECREATION

DuBois Park

This park is one of Palm Beach County's most popular parks, featuring fishing, boating, swimming, snorkeling, picnicking, and more in a scenic, tropical setting. DuBois Park is environmentally significant. Located at the mouth of the Loxahatchee River, the southernmost of the federally designated Wild and Scenic River, the park features frontage along the Jupiter Inlet as well as a tidal creek that has become a popular wading and swimming area for small children. The 18-acre park is connected by a foot bridge to Jupiter Beach Park, a 46-acre county-operated oceanfront park. It is also located in close proximity to the Indian River Lagoon, one of the most biologically diverse estuaries in the nation.

Peanut Island

This unique eighty-acre tropical park is a favorite destination for boaters and provides numerous recreational opportunities for visitors. Fishing and snorkeling are popular activities in the beautiful clear waters that surround the island. Guarded and Unguarded Swimming Beaches provide the perfect access for bathers of all ages to enjoy the sun and fun. For visitors looking for an overnight experience, a twenty-site Campground is available for tent campers by reservation as well as limited Natural Areas Beach Camping in designated areas. No visit to Peanut Island is complete without taking a casual stroll on the paver pathways which wind around the perimeter of the Island. (By boat only)

John D. MacArthur Beach State Park

A unique mixture of coastal and tropical hammock and mangrove forest, this barrier island provides a haven for several rare or endangered native tropical and coastal plant species. The park's Nature Center shows visitors why the park is a biological treasure. Visitors can swim, picnic, and surf at the beach; scuba diving and snorkeling are also popular activities. Birdwatchers can see herons, brown pelicans, terns, sandpipers, and gulls. Anglers can fish in the lagoon by wading, kayaking, or canoeing.

Riverbend Park

Take a step back in time and enjoy walking, bicycling, riding, or canoeing through beautiful and historic Riverbend Park. From the ancient Indian middens, through the Seminole War Battles, to present day restoration, see Florida as the first settlers did. Nearly 10 miles of hiking/biking trails, 7 miles of equestrian trails and 5 miles of canoeing/kayaking trails allow for hours of enjoyment. Stroll along the Wild and Scenic Loxahatchee River, visit the Cracker Farmstead, and picnic in the shade under a Seminole chickee.

Jonathan Dickinson State Park

Located just south of Stuart, this park teems with wildlife in 13 natural communities, including sand pine scrub, pine flatwoods, mangroves, and river swamps. The Loxahatchee River, Florida's first federally designated Wild and Scenic River, runs through the park. Ranger-guided tours of the 1930s pioneer homestead of Trapper Nelson are available year-round. Visitors can enjoy paved and off-road biking, equestrian, and hiking trails. Boating, canoeing, and kayaking along the river are also great ways to see the park. Anglers can fish along the riverbank or from a boat. The nature and history of the park comes to life through exhibits and displays in the Elsa Kimbell Environmental Education and Research Center.

Blowing Rocks Preserve

After five decades of protecting Florida's great places, The Nature Conservancy considers Blowing Rocks Preserve a top success story. This peaceful, barrier island sanctuary is a well-known model for large-scale, native coastal habitat restoration. The carefully restored habitats found here are disappearing fast from many Florida islands, and a number of endangered plants and animals call this special place home – including rare loggerhead, green and leatherback sea turtles. The preserve was named for its rocky Anastasia limestone shoreline – the largest on the U.S. Atlantic coast. During extreme high tides and after winter storms, seas break against the rocks and force plumes of saltwater up to 50 feet skyward. It's an impressive sight.
